Dear Chairman Pai:

FCC Mailroom

We write to urge the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to closely scrutinize media mergers that fall within its jurisdiction, particularly Sinclair Broadcasting's proposed acquisition of Tribune Media.

On September 29, 2017, several of us discouraged the agency from further attempts to relax the FCC's media ownership standards without a thorough public review of the state of the broadcast marketplace. Our recommendations were ignored.

At its November Open Meeting, the FCC voted to significantly weaken regulations relating to competition in local media markets. The November vote followed recent FCC decisions to eliminate the Main Studio Rule and reinstate the UHF discount, which likely encouraged Sinclair and Tribune to enter into their merger and expand the universe of potential media transactions.

We agree with the sentiments expressed by FCC Commissioners Jessica Rosenworcel and Mignon Clyburn that by jettisoning these media rules without the collection and review of pertinent industry data, the FCC abdicated its responsibility to uphold the core values of localism, competition and diversity in broadcasting.<sup>1</sup> The FCC seems determined to continue on this troubling course, voting on December 14, along party lines, to begin a comprehensive review of the national television audience cap,<sup>2</sup> a cap set by Congress in 2004. The elimination of these rules will pave the way for further broadcast, radio, and print media consolidation in an increasingly concentrated economy.

Under these circumstances, the need for the FCC to conduct thorough, objective reviews of individual transactions in the media sector is greater than ever. Sinclair's proposed acquisition of Tribune is an example of the kind of media merger that raises obvious and troubling competitive issues. Sinclair Broadcasting is already the largest owner of local television stations in the country. A combined Sinclair/Tribune would own 233 television stations and reach 72 percent of American households, affecting tens of millions of consumers. The proposed Sinclair/Tribune merger is precisely the type of media transaction that deserves the highest level of scrutiny from the FCC. Given the recent relaxation of regulations at the FCC, mergers of this size may become more common.

Today we also wrote to Assistant Attorney General Delrahim asking for close scrutiny of mergers in the media industry. In our letter, we urged the Department of Justice (DOJ) to conduct a thorough investigation of this and any subsequent media mergers and to take whatever enforcement action is warranted under applicable antitrust law. The relaxation of media regulations under the FCC's leadership, in addition to disturbing allegations concerning your conduct relating to the Sinclair/Tribune transaction, have undermined our confidence that the FCC will conduct an impartial investigation into this proposed merger. A copy of that letter is attached.

Deregulation in the media industry has heightened the need for thorough and impartial reviews of individual transactions. We urge the FCC to redouble its efforts to investigate proposed media transactions and take action where competition or consumers would be harmed.

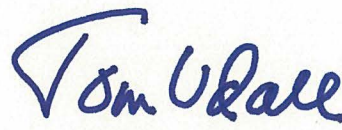

Thank you for your prompt attention to this request.

Sincerely,

Dear Senator Duckworth:

Thank you for your letter regarding Sinclair Broadcast Group's proposed acquisition of Tribune Media. I appreciate hearing your views, and your letter will be made part of the official record of the proceeding.

Consistent with our rules, the Commission will evaluate whether this proposed transaction is in the public interest. While I am unable to discuss the merits of this particular proceeding, I can assure you that the Commission is conducting an open and transparent process as required by FCC rules and regulations and that our decision will be based on a careful analysis of the robust record that has been developed.

Your letter also raises issues regarding recent Commission actions to modify media ownership rules. While I appreciate your concerns, I believe that the rule changes adopted by the Commission will enable broadcast stations – particularly in the small and mid-sized markets – to better serve their local communities. These rules went into effect on February 7, after the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit rejected a request to stay the effectiveness of the reforms the Commission made in November 2017.

Again, thank you for your interest in this matter.

Sincerely,
